the earliest effects of smoking on the mouth and nose are the destruction of the glands that taste and smell vitamin A, which we obtain from food, is important for the normal growth and development of the body, especially the skin.