In previous sections of the guide, we have described in detail the various non-verbal signals people use to show that they have finished what they are saying, and that it is your turn to speak.