i think enacting birth control measures on everyone except those who have demonstrated a desire and an ability to be good parents would provide immense benefits to society.

taking antihypertensive medications at bedtime rather than in the morning has been shown to be associated with better blood pressure control.

brinx2019's funding efforts through the fox foundation are studying specific blocking mechanisms that may offer the first real treatment to slow the disease.